Building Better Communities

From our Chief Executive

Commentators seem to be in two minds over the recession. Some take the view that the worst is now over whilst others predict a second phase driven by major cuts in public sector spending.

It certainly seems likely that whatever the outcome of the next general election cuts in public spending will be the order of the day and that this will lead to a redefinition of the role of the state. Some have even suggested that, as a nation, we will be facing the worst public finances since the end of the Second World War and that the response cannot just be about spending cuts. It must also be about finding new solutions to old, expensive social problems.

Rural communities are well used to responding creatively to challenges. Low public sector investment, self reliance and strong community governance, through the parish council system, are all hallmarks of our rural areas.

Perhaps, in these challenging times when necessity once again becomes the mother of invention, rural communities will be able to demonstrate a new relevance to the modern day vision of sustainable community.

Calor VOY Competition Suspended.

Gas company Calor has suspended its community village of the year competition for 2010. The company has suspended its national contest for next year – including its Herefordshire and Worcestershire heats – as it refocuses its community work on energy efficiency advice. Calor has stressed that this is not the end of the competition and they will be looking to bring it back as soon as it is viable to do so. The winners of this years competition was Worcestershire village Hanley Swan.

Members Only Site Under Construction.

As some you may have noticed the Members Only part of our website is currently being redeveloped. The aim is to provide our members with advanced features and the very latest information relating to the sector. The site is being developed to incorporate web feeds from other voluntary sector websites to act as a one stop shop for all the latest news, funding advice and events from around the region. We have already added various information leaflets aimed at village hall management committees and will continue over the next few weeks to develop the information on there further.

National Charity Leader Speaks a Worcestershire Infrastructure Consortium's Annual Conference

WIC (Worcestershire Infrastructure Consortium) have invited national charity leader Kevin Curley, of NAVCA, to speak at their November conference for the VCS (voluntary and community sector). NAVCA is the national voice of local third sector infrastructure in England. While the second speaker for the day, Sharon Palmer from RAWM, will discuss the VCS and how it might respond to the Economic Downturn. The conference will be held at Worcester Rugby Football Club Pitch View Suite Tuesday 24th November 2009 10am – 3pm. For any VCS Organisation in Worcestershire

this is an important date for your diary.

'Accidental techies'

Community First's getwithit project hosted two training events in September, both of which were fully subscribed.

The Accidental Techie sessions were based at South Wye Learning Centre in Hereford and Perdiswell Young Peoples' Leisure Club in Worcestershire. The focus of the sessions was on how small voluntary and community organisations can save money through making use of free-on-line ICT tools.

The session investigated how you could work more efficiently with your customers and contacts, as well as exploring the idea of having a good quality IT induction in place to ensure that staff and volunteers using IT systems can do so effectively. The workshops included live demonstrations of Twitter, Facebook, Microsoft Office Live, Google Applications and much more. The presenter for these sessions was Pete Read who is the ICT Champion for the West Midlands, a role which Community First has hosted for over 2 years.

Accidental Techie Workshops are put together specifically for people with no ICT background but through circumstance find themselves responsible for ICT within their organisations.

Our aim is for people to go back to their organisations having learnt something practical and beneficial about ICT. With ICT often being an add-on to roles or done in a voluntary capacity, those involved often do not have the time or money to receive formal training. Accidental Techies has been developed to offer bite sized sessions concentrating on ICT issues that matter to the sector. The sessions provide short, practical examples of best practice and act as a great way of networking and learning. Delivering these sessions in this way provides an efficient means of training whilst leaning practical ways developing and improving skills and knowhow.

Sessions for next year will be Mastering Microsoft Outlook; Avoid becoming a slave to Outlook, instead learn how to manage e-mails, folders, rules, appointments, tasks and notes to 'get things done'.

Configuring, managing and using Office Live Small Business- create a professional on-line image to the outside world.

It's VAT Time Again...

On 1st January 2010 the standard VAT rate of 17.5% will be reinstated. This will have a large impact on Voluntary Sector Organisations who are exempt or not VAT registered, as they are not able to claim back any VAT. The 2.5% increase in VAT will impact hugely on costs such as asset purchases and equipment leases, and organisations need to consider the implications of these changes when budgeting and following cost cutting exercises. For example, if you are planning to purchase new equipment, it may be beneficial to make your purchases in December rather than January, to take advantage of the lower VAT rate of 15%.

If you are VAT registered, you must remember to charge the increased rate of VAT from 1st January 2010 on all your standard-rated VATable supplies.

For more information and tips on how to prepare for these changes contact HM Revenue & Customs or visit their web site hmrc.gov.uk. The following link takes you to the HMRC guidance on the rate rise:

This document gives guidance on how to deal with such issues as dealing with deposits, different VAT accounting schemes etc.

Secret Millionaire Fund

The Big Lottery Fund (BIG) and Channel 4's TV programme, The Secret Millionaire have teamed up to give viewers of the programme a chance to act on the charitable inspiration fuelled by the show. Lottery funding worth £1 million has been made available for people to apply for, or nominate projects to apply for grants of between £300 and £10,000 (£5,000 in Wales) from the Secret Millionaire Fund. Viewers can propose a community project or organisation that they think would benefit from BIG funding. BIG will then contact the organisation to see if it is eligible to apply for this small grants scheme and send out the relevant information.

Community Matters

Supermarket chain, Waitrose will award funding of £2.2 million over the next year to nearly 7,000 charities and local good causes. The funding is being made through a new initiative called Community Matters. Through this scheme, Waitrose will allocate £1,000 a month to each of its 190 branches to distribute amongst three local community projects as chosen by its customers and employees. As part of the scheme, each customer will be given a token at the checkout that they can place into a box representing their preferred good cause - the amount of money each charity receives will be in direct proportion to the number of tokens customers allocate.

Parks for People

The Heritage Lottery Fund (HLF) has announced that the next closing date for applications to the Parks for People programme is the 1st March 2010. Launched originally as a joint initiative with the Big Lottery Fund full responsibility for the programme has now passed to the Heritage Lottery Fund Local Authorities as well as not for profit organisations that own public parks and gardens can apply for grants of between £250,000 and £5 million for the regeneration of parks and public gardens (including squares, walks and promenades). Applicants will need to raise at least 30 % of the project costs from their own sources and partnership funding, either as cash or non-cash contributions.

Reaching Communities Relaxes Eligibility Criteria

The Big Lottery Fund (BIG) has announced, that due to the difficulties experienced by projects and communities during the current economic downturn, that it has decided to relax the eligibility criteria for Reaching Communities to enable these projects to apply for funding. The Reaching Communities programme will now accept applications for projects that were previously eligible for other BIG programmes. This will include amongst others:

- Projects that provide family learning activities
- Children's play activities such as after school clubs or one o' clock clubs
- The refurbishment of community buildings
- Community services taking place within libraries
- Projects that have young people as their primary beneficiaries; etc.

Organisations that can apply for Reaching Communities funding include not for profit organisations, statutory bodies, including schools and social enterprises. The total budget available for 2009 – 10 is £80 millions and grants can range from £10,000 and £500,000 for projects lasting up to 5 years.

Applications can be made at any time till at least to the end of March 2010 after which BIG is planning to launch a range of new programmes.

Rural Community Transport to Benefit from New Social Enterprise Development Fund

The Community Transport Association (CTA) and the Plunkett Foundation have announced a new three year Social Enterprise Rural Community Transport Development Fund. The new fund will offer grant/loan packages to eight organisations around England to enable them to significantly grow their contract income. The funding package will be backed up by a range of training, development and networking support provided by the CTA and Plunkett over the life of the programme. The funding, totalling almost £1 million, has been secured from the Esmée Fairbairn Foundation, the Department for Transport, the Commission for Rural Communities and Futurebuilders England. Further information on the programme will be announced in early November.

British Telecom Community Connection Awards Round 2

BT has announced that they are now accepting applications through their Connection Awards programme round 2. BT Community Connections is an award scheme which enables community and charitable organisations to get online and make use of information and communications technology (ICT). Organisations, working in any field of community benefit, located throughout the UK or Republic of Ireland, can apply for a laptop and a year's free broadband connection. There are more than 1,000 award packages available to groups or clusters of groups who can demonstrate how an award will benefit their work and the local community. Award winners in the past have included: silver-surfers, cultural dance groups, conservation organisations, mountain rescue teams, family support groups, healthy living clubs, arts and music groups, sports teams and youth groups. The next deadline for applications is the 5th January 2010.

Extra Funding to Support Disabled People to Volunteer

The Government has launched a £2 million pilot fund in London, the West Midlands and the North-West, to support disabled people to volunteer. The fund aims to increase the number of disabled people volunteering in the target regions, and will act as a pilot for a national Access to Volunteering Fund. The funding will also provide evidence of additional costs associated with disabled people volunteering, particularly costs that cannot be met by other sources. The funding comes after a study that showed that disabled people are 9% less likely to volunteer than the rest of the population due to a lack of special equipment, inappropriate premises, the extra cost of travel, and the need to support workers to provide physical and communications assistance.

Village Hall

And as far as the big money is concerned...

I said in the last issue that we were due to hear from the Big Lottery in July about the results of their consultation on their last 3 year programme. Well, that meeting happened and we are not much the wiser about what might be available in 2009 -12. All we can say is that we don't expect any announcements till next year, possibly in the spring. Meanwhile there is this grants and loans funding stream called Community Builders. Some of you wanting big money may have already registered your interest with them <http://www.futurebuilders-england.org.uk/> We, as advisers, are still waiting for briefing on what this fund can do for our halls and how it will work. As soon as I have more to tell you I will do a block email.

The obvious thing about funding that isn't obvious at all

It's horrifyingly easy in any job to forget that things that are blindingly obvious to you – because you're paid to know them – are not necessarily obvious at all to your customers. Following a spate of recent calls I realise that the following fact is very much in that category. Outside funders – the Lottery, central and local government grants, charities and trusts – will not fund routine and predictable repairs and maintenance items. By this I mean things like re-roofing, sorting out drainage and soakaway systems, rewiring, resealing floors, resurfacing car parks etc. The logic is that prudent committees will put money by from their annual surpluses of income over expenditure to pay for these things. (Yes, I can hear all those committees shouting "What surpluses?" - but I don't make the rules.) What they can be asked for is money to improve elements of your building in a way that safeguards existing services and improves them to meet demand that you can prove exists. It's a case of remembering my oft repeated tagline "They fund why not what" What clever committees do is create funding bids where the repair and maintenance items get done as part of building work that improves facilities. You may need help to get clever. That's what I'm here for: to help you plan your fund raising strategy. And talking of what gets funded and what not... Any of you out there who have car parks and storage space on your shopping list, don't delay, call today. Because these are, currently, my top two "hard to fund" items.

Sharing is a smart idea

There has been a recent spate of bids coming into funders in Herefordshire for things such as film projection equipment. The funders have been turning these bids down on the very reasonable grounds that for most of the time such equipment will sit idle in their halls. What the funders have been inviting applicants to do is to see if they can develop equipment sharing schemes with neighbouring halls so the benefit can be maximized. I am now working with committees to see if they can work up proposals with their neighbours. The more I go round halls, the more I can see that there is potential for sharing of equipment between halls. There are examples great and small: sets of drain rods, floor polishers that only get used when a new finish is laid down, marques, PA equipment for events. The list goes on. Obviously there are issues to sort out: where the equipment lives, who insures it, where it lives, who runs the booking scheme etc. We hope that we may be able to produce a model agreement for sharing schemes to help people to avoid re-invention of the wheel. In the meantime if your committee wants to explore such ideas, contact local halls to see if they want to play, get in touch with me and I can help you with names and email addresses for your neighbouring halls. Or if you already have a sharing scheme, tell me about it so I can publicize your cleverness for the benefit of others.

Wanted A Legal Eagle Volunteer

Our Community Buildings Advisory Service gets regular enquiries about their constitutions from hall committees. Sometimes the enquiries are straightforward and can be easily answered. But we also get complex legal questions which we can't answer. We urgently need a volunteer with legal qualifications who has experience of dealing with questions about charity constitutions. The amount of time needed will vary according to demand but would not amount to more than a couple of hours per month at most. Could you be the person we are looking for? If you are, you could make a big difference to the quality of service we offer.

Contact me, Rob Grunsell on 01432 262972 or robg@comfirst.org.uk. I'd love to hear from you

Do you need advice on recent changes in legislation, managing finances, working with volunteers or the responsibilities of trustees?

Calling on a wealth of information and experience gained through many years of providing advice and support to the Third Sector, Newslines is here to help, whatever the problem.

Q. We are a small voluntary organisation in Worcestershire working with disadvantaged people and we need some funding to help us cope with the increasing demand for our services. I've heard of something called the Grassroots Programme – could this fund our work?

A. Grassroots is funded by the Office of the third sector and is delivered by Community First on behalf of the Community Development Foundation. The aim of this grants programme is to 'Build the capacity of small and emerging voluntary and community groups to deliver valuable services for the most disadvantaged communities and people in Worcestershire'.

Grassroots grants start at £250 up to a maximum of £5000. Funding can be given for a wide range of activities including purchasing equipment, putting on a local event or workshop, covering staff costs, contributing to rent costs (related to activities / service delivery), attendance at a conference or event and paying for training volunteers. If you are a voluntary or community group; locally managed and based in Worcestershire; have a set of rules and a management committee; are predominately volunteer led, with an average annual turn over of less than £30K and have a bank account, then Grassroots could be for you.

Details on how to apply for funding are available at www.comfirst.org.uk or you can call Sophie Mead at Community First on 01432 267820 (Mondays, Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Fridays) or 01684 312734 (Thursdays) to find out more. Alternatively email Sophie on sophiem@comfirst.org.uk.

Q. It would be really useful for training purposes to create a video of set of screenshots or ideally a video of my desktop. These files would then be used as 'how to' guides for staff when I am not available. Is there anything available that will allow me to do this?

A. It is often useful to be able to capture a portion of your screen, for inclusion in a training manual, or for sending an error message to your technical support team.

At Community First we use Jing which is a great free product that makes capturing screen images and video very simple to do. You can download it from <http://www.jingproject.com/download/>.

You can add arrows and captions, and highlight different areas.

Jing will also capture speech and all your screen activity so it's a great way of producing a short training video. Jing will also store your videos online so that you can email a link to the video rather than clog the system with large email attachments. For help on using Jing, see <http://help.jingproject.com/>. For more IT tips visit getwithit.org.uk/new-top-tips

Q. We would like to implement a quality system for our organisation, but are not sure which one is best for us – can you advise?

A. Go to the Community First website at www.comfirst.org.uk and follow the link to 'Running Groups or Organisations'. Then click on Worcestershire Infrastructure Consortium Quality Standards. Here you will find an overview of national, regional and other quality systems, together with links to further information and a list of people working within the Consortium, who can provide advice.

Q. We are a small registered charity, what are the mileage rates we should be paying our staff and volunteers?

A. As a charity, you are at liberty to decide the amount per mile you wish to pay to your employees/volunteers to reimburse their vehicle running costs for mileage incurred whilst working for the charity. To be exempt from any tax liability, you cannot pay more than 40p per mile for the first 10,000 miles covered in a year and 25p per mile thereafter. Please note that these rates are for cars.

If you choose to reimburse your employees above this rate, the additional amount will be subject to tax. More information on mileage rates for other vehicles and calculating any potential tax liability is available from the HMRC website: www.hmrc.gov.uk

NB. Remember staff and volunteers should be encouraged to car share or use public transport wherever possible.

Q. Are we correct in assuming that as our village hall committee is a charity, we don't have to pay VAT?

A. Sadly, yes you do. VAT is a highly complex subject which so few people really understand well they aren't allowed to travel together in the same car. Whilst parish councils and local authorities can reclaim VAT, village hall committees and other charities can't. Goods, services and building refurbishment are all subject to VAT. However new build costs are VAT free, as are items associated with enabling disabled access to buildings and toilets. If you are trying to work out whether you are liable or if someone has told you that you can just pass your bills to the parish council to pay so they can get the VAT back, stop right there and seek advice, to avoid a nasty surprise later on.

Getting Out and About

I live 7 miles from the nearest market town, there is no bus service in the village and I don't have a car, so I'm stuck – right?

Well no - wrong actually. Community First supports a network of community transport schemes across the county, which provide door to door transport for hundreds of local residents who do not have access to public or private transport. Sophie Pryce, Community First's Rural Transport Adviser, explained: "every parish in the county is served by one of the 7 community transport providers funded by Herefordshire Council. These services are targeted at people who live in areas where it is not viable or possible to provide a bus service and those who are unable to use such services".

Sophie's role is to provide advice and support to community transport providers, helping them with issues such as volunteer recruitment, changes in legislation and meeting their service level targets. She also works with the schemes to help identify transport needs in their areas and increase their capacity or develop new services to meet them.

A weekly trip to the hairdresser is just as important for one person's wellbeing as a trip to the doctor or dentist is for another. This service user lives in Dorstone, about 5 miles from Hay, and was keen to express her gratitude to Hay and District DAR for their help and in particular to the volunteer who turns up on the dot each week, come rain or shine, to take her to a hairdresser in Hay. Many volunteer drivers have retired from paid work and find driving for a community transport scheme a good way of staying active and keeping in touch with their local community.

Community First helped Hay and District DAR to access funding to purchase a new, accessible vehicle to ensure that wheelchair users and others with particular mobility difficulties can enjoy the same degree of access to services as able bodied people.

Each of the community transport schemes provides services Monday to Friday, mainly during the day. Journeys are booked in advance (usually a minimum of 2 working days) and a small charge is made to help towards the cost of operating the service. Contact details for the schemes are shown below:

Lifeline Car Scheme (Hereford Rural)

01432 277622 10.00 – 16.00

The local village shop may only be 1 mile away, but it might just as well be 100 miles away for people without access to a car, or who are unable to drive. Services such as Dore CT enable people to access shops, like this one in Ewyas Harold, to stock up on provisions, collect pensions, post Christmas parcels and meet with their friends. Without the services of the County’s community transport providers, many people would be looking to move to the larger towns, where they can access services more easily.

The existence of village shops is increasingly under threat as post offices are being closed and the economy is experiencing a significant downturn. Community transport providers are therefore playing an important role by helping customers to continue to use their local shops.

A few miles south of Hereford, the Holme Lacy College of Technology runs a life skills course for people with learning difficulties. Lifeline takes people out to the College on a regular basis to participate in the course and learn vital skills to enable them to live more independently and engage more effectively with the local community. Many of the volunteer drivers that work for Lifeline are experienced in working and communicating with service users with particular needs and are able to be sensitive to their concerns and put them at ease during the journey.

Community First has supported Lifeline to obtain additional funding to help the service to expand its activities in the rural parishes surrounding the City of Hereford

Community transport schemes rely to a large extent on volunteers to provide service and are always keen to recruit more volunteers. An allowance is paid to volunteers to cover their running costs, including vehicle wear and tear, which is usually paid monthly in accordance with the mileage they have covered. Schemes are generally flexible and can tailor the hours and frequency of volunteering to suit the individual – just a couple of hours a week can make a big difference to a person’s quality of life.

For enquiries and comments about Community Transport or other rural transport issues, or if you are not sure which scheme serves your area, contact Sophie Pryce, Rural Transport Adviser, on 01432 262973 or e-mail: sophiep@comfirst.org.uk. Sophie would also like to hear from you if you would like to find out more about being a volunteer driver.

HASP goes out

After 3 years of working to improve access to services in rural areas, the Herefordshire Access to Services Partnership programme has come to an end. With funding from Advantage West Midlands (AWM) and Herefordshire Council, the Partnership, supported by the Access to Services Officer employed by Community First, has supported the development of more than 20 initiatives designed to help disadvantaged people gain access to local statutory, community, commercial and leisure services. Paul Paice, who up until recently was the Access to Services Officer, said: "The Partnership has been very successful at supporting projects that have made a real difference to the lives of people living in rural areas who were previously unable to access essential local services. It has also significantly exceeded targets set by AWM related to improving the employment prospects of unemployed people and supporting the development of local businesses."

Case Study: Wheels to Work

This project provides a range of travel solutions for people seeking access to employment and training opportunities. HASP funding has enabled Wheels to Work to implement a rolling programme of moped replacement, resulting in increased reliability and reduced maintenance costs. Vehicles are loaned out for a nominal fee for up to 10 months, to allow sufficient time for the service user to save up enough money to finance their future travel needs. The service user may use the vehicle outside of work hours, thus enhancing their ability to access a wider range of local services, including leisure and social opportunities.

Case Study: Support for Rural Shops

People living in rural areas often depend on their local village shop to supply a range of goods which otherwise might only be available in a market town several miles away. It is estimated that 20% of village shops in Herefordshire have closed over the last 10 years, with many of those that survive under increasing risk of closure. During 2007/08 staff from the Rural Shops Alliance spent a day with each of 20 Herefordshire village shops, reviewing store layout, products stocked, fittings, staffing, pricing, opening hours, marketing and environmental health. Advice was also provided on additional goods and services that might be offered to increase footfall, optimize utilization of space and generate additional revenue. One of the businesses benefiting from this project is The Top Shop in Clehonger. Implementation of the recommendations made by the RSA resulted in a 7% increase in sales, helping to ensure that both the shop and the post office within it have a long term future serving the local community.

If you would like to find out more about future plans to improve access to services in Herefordshire, contact Nina Bridges, Community Regeneration Manager at Herefordshire Council on 01432 260624
