

Veena Allison LLb

Veena Allison originally started her career as a solicitor in private practice, specialising in Employment Law. She now provides coaching and support services as an Employment Law consultant, and is highly experienced in representing, assisting and training local and national organisations from a wide range of sectors. She is particularly well known for her informative and engaging training workshops.

Style and Experience:

Veena's style of consultancy is mirrored in her ability to deliver engaging, jargon free seminars and training workshops to delegates of all levels. She has delivered employment law / HR training for a wide range of organisations on an in-house basis, as well as speaking at public events for organisations including:

- Chamber of Commerce
- Chartered Institute of Personnel & Development (CIPD)
- NHS Trusts
- Local authorities
- Small and medium size businesses
- Charitable/ voluntary organisations
- Various industry associations

Training Topics:

Speaking topics can be developed to suit each audience and either cover a specific issue / topic or cover a wide range of Employment Law / HR elements to give a more generic session. Popular content includes:

- Essential Employment Law for Managers
- Investigation Skills for Managers
- Managing Absence
- Equal Opportunities / Discrimination Law
- Managing Performance Issues
- Conflict management
- Presentations & Negotiation Skills

Management Coaching:

People management does not come naturally to everybody, and this is often a major cause of conflict and stress in the workplace. Veena can provide approachable and practical support and coaching for managers who are struggling to deal with people issues, or simply want to improve their ability to effectively manage this sensitive but vital part of their responsibility.
